

Most of us have not lived through war or sustained economic turmoil, but generations before us did.

Unfortunately, this is our turn. This is our time to show

Leadership in a time of crisis

Leaders in all organisations now face unprecedented challenges:

1. Some organisations – essential to society’s very survival - are overrun by demand and the stress of adapting and innovating under pressure. How do you maintain the stamina and endurance of a workforce burdened by community expectations, domestic challenges and personal anxiety and fear? For the millions on the other side of the spectrum, isolated and fearing for their future – how do we support their wellbeing? How do we keep our people strong and how do we help them to be and remain positive in the face of such uncertainty? What is resilience at a time like this?
2. Some organisations teeter on the edge of failure, desperately harnessing challenged resources to survive. How do you maintain productivity at a time that it is needed most, but challenged by enforced isolation, compelling distractions and reduced collaboration?
3. All organisations that will survive this ordeal will need to re-build. How do we lay the foundations for recovery now? How do we see through the fog of turmoil, to ready ourselves for a strategic recovery?

Resilience. Productivity. Strategic Recovery.
